

The Importance of Speaking in English – By Miguel Prada

Speaking in English today's worldwide society has become a necessary skill. English is the business and education universal language, which makes it imperative that our children learn it. Of course, there are multiplied opportunities for our kids to speak and hear English with and among all the English-speaking people in their lives, get friends, talk to relatives, or business acquaintances. But these are even more multiplied with the television opportunities that our kids have to gather with all the English-speaking people who maybe surrounding them.

One of the most effective ways for children to enhance their English-speaking skill is by practicing regularly. Even engaging in rudimentary dialogues can help them reach a new level of confidence and comfortable fluency. Watching English cartoons, listening to English songs, or even playing in English. Using technology in education can be a transformative experience. Many applications have been specifically developed to improve English speaking abilities.

Three of these applications are Duolingo, Memrise, and Babbel. They present interactive lessons and (much of the time) enjoyable exercises that focus on pronunciation, vocabulary, and grammar. Duolingo is somewhat of a language-learning powerhouse; its potential for keeping students engaged and motivated has no borders. On top of that, HelloTalk has emerged as a fantastic app to English learning because its atmosphere is as safe as can be for practicing with native speakers.

Lastly, setting realistic goals and celebrating progress is important to keep kids motivated. Every small achievement in learning English, like using new vocabulary in a sentence, should be acknowledged. This positive reinforcement helps maintain enthusiasm and confidence in their speaking abilities. By combining practice, technology, and a positive learning environment, kids can become fluent in English and gain lifelong benefits from this essential skill.
